

A Better World

Have you ever gone to bed thinking about the next day? Maybe tomorrow you won't spill your coffee on your brand new shirt. Maybe you'll get promoted at work. Or maybe, you'll wake up, and the entire world will be better. Climate change would be nonexistent, people would have good job opportunities, there wouldn't be pollution, and there would be an equal trade balance with different countries.

This would be an ideal better tomorrow, but in reality, this can't happen overnight. Climate change will always exist, and there won't always be available jobs. At least one person will throw trash on the ground, and the U.S. relies mostly on China. These things can be changed but not overnight. There is no such thing as an ideal better tomorrow.

However, there can still be a better world. If people are willing to work together, than the world would be so much better. If only that one guy stops littering, and the government relies more on our country's resources. If only scientists could solve climate change, and there were better jobs. But "if only" can't change anything. Only we can make the world better.

So, even though the world can't change overnight, it can still change. All it needs is a little bit of help from us. Let's work together to make a better world.